Welcome to South Africa!

We Meet a Family

At an open-air market in the middle of Cape Town, we meet a young girl and her mother who have grown up in South Africa and speak several of the country's 11 national languages. They offer to show Jason various parts of Cape Town going places only locals know about.

We Have an Adventure

While residing in Cape Town, our family invites us to see a very different side of the country. We board a small propeller plane and arrive in the middle of the African jungle where trackers take us on a safari unlike any other. Not only do we see amazing animals in their natural habitat, but Jason also learns how many of the plants in the jungle can be used for survival.

We Share a Meal

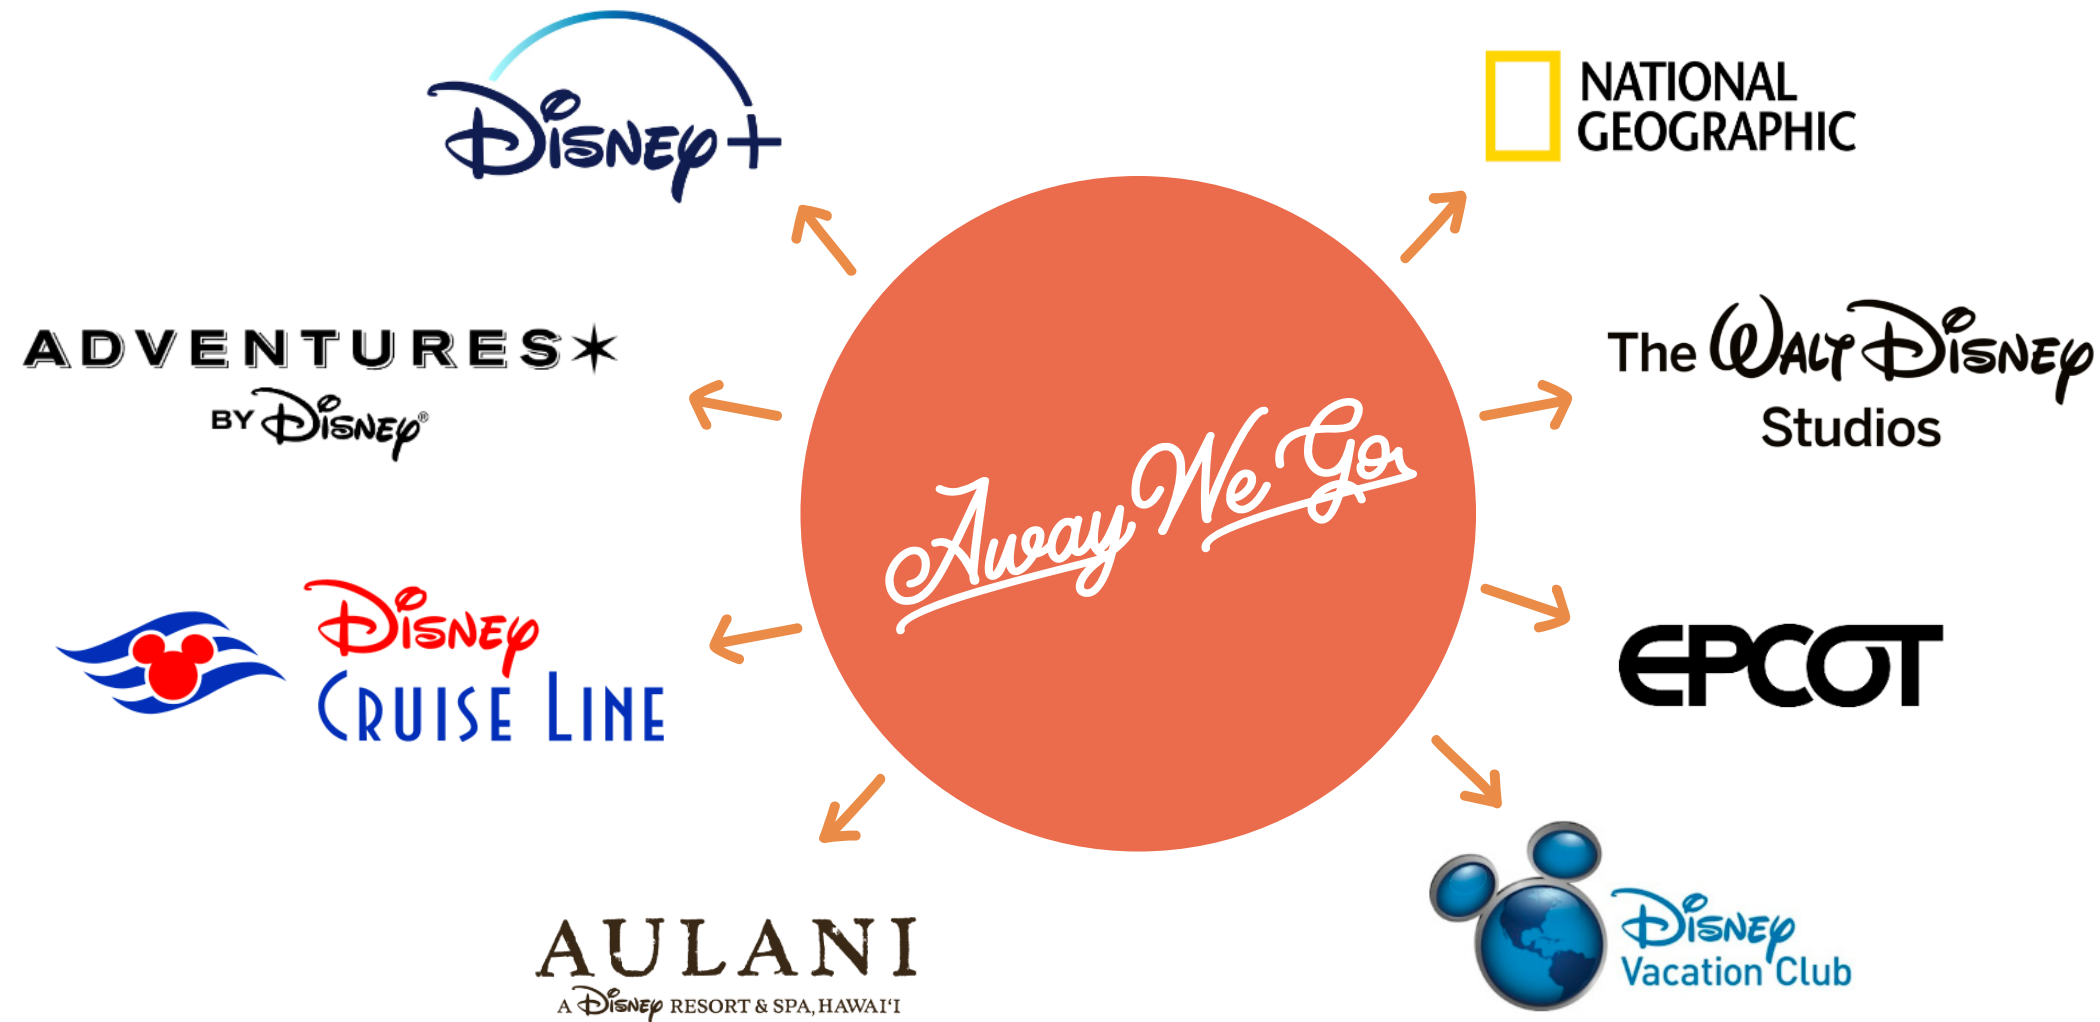

Our child host and her family put on a traditional barbecue, called a brai. They enjoy various meats like kudu, zebra, and oxtail, while also savoring other South African delicacies. That evening around a bonfire, they enjoy one another's company and laugh about the day's activities, sharing stories and marveling at the starry night sky.

We Say "Thanks"

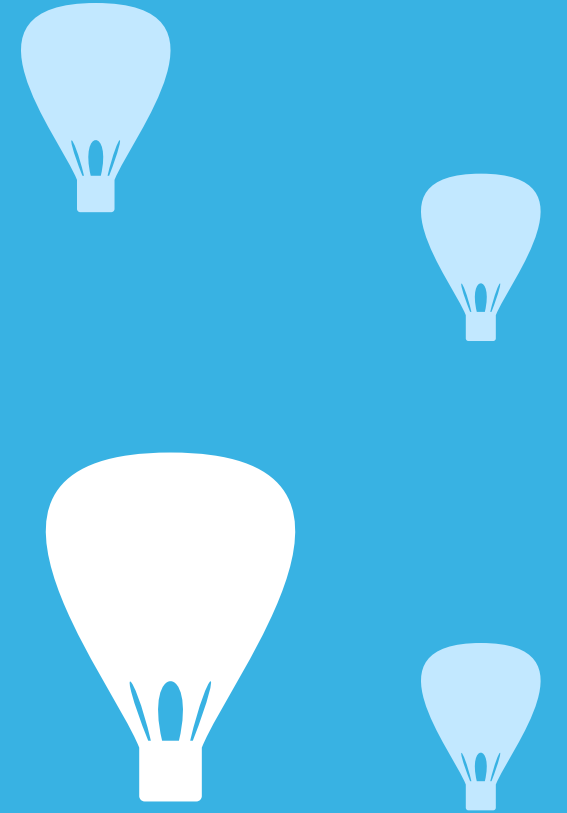

Visiting a person's home city is truly a gift and now it's our chance to say "thanks!" We join a local surf group that uses art and surfing to help kids in areas called townships. After a surf session at J-Bay, we help supply the group with new materials and join them in crafting, creating art together and performing for one another. Giving back has never been so much fun!

One adventure leads to the next!

"Strangers are just family
you have yet to come to know."
